WINTER CARNIVAL

WILL WE EVER FORGET?!?

Coles notes ... fetal pigs surprise tests ... late nights ... gallons of coffee ... endless classes ... food flings ... football games ... morning rehearsals ... last year's formal ... N.T.'s dances ... Tonka toys ... English essays ... Cancer Alley ... Maytime Melodies ... Hi-Jinx ... Wordpower Sherk ... Fran's ... Heart of Darkness ... Library staff ... countless lates ... The Keg ... All in spite of ourselves.

LEAVING NORTH TORONTO

All our books are closed, we're ready to run
But we'd like to tell you before we're done,
'Bout those teachers who've taught us for five years.
You teachers you have been so great,
You yell at us when we come late,
But still you go on teaching anyhow,
CHORUS:

So ... thank you, we thank you all,
We came each day and had a ball,
So please, please don't forget us when we're gone
'Cause we're leaving North Toronto
Don't think we really want to go,
But still ... we must move on.

The English teachers they aren't so bad,
But WHEN the bell rings they are glad
'Cause they think our that grammar ain't so good.
And in the Cafe, we love their food,
It puts us in a choleric wood.
For when we have to go to our next class
CHORUS:

The math teachers they know their stuff
They catch us when we try to bluff,
But we carry on in spite of ourselves
And science teachers, they were a bang
Mr. Fox is waving, "So long gang",
We had phun but now it's time to go.

CHORUS: 1.5 times
So please, please don't forget us
WHEN WE'RE GONE!!!

Lyrics by Steve Cislak and John Neal

TO SIR WITH LOVE

These schoolgirl days of telling tales
And biting nails are gone.
But in my mind
I know they will still live on and on.
But how do you thank someone Who has taken you from crayons to perfume?
It isn't easy but I'll try.
If you wanted the sky
I would write across the sky in letters
That would soar a thousand feet high
"To Sir with love"
The time has come
For closing books
And long last looks must end
And, as I leave
I know that I am leaving my best friend.
A friend who taught me right from wrong
And weak from strong.
That's a lot to learn, but What can I give you in return?
If you wanted the moon
I would shine up at the stars.

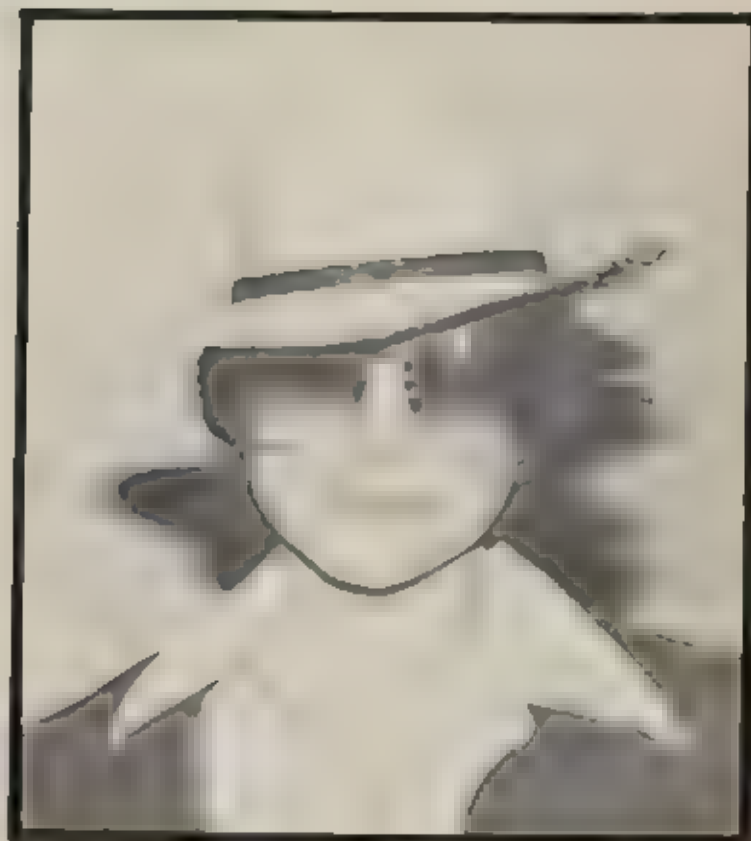

NT RAINBOW SONG

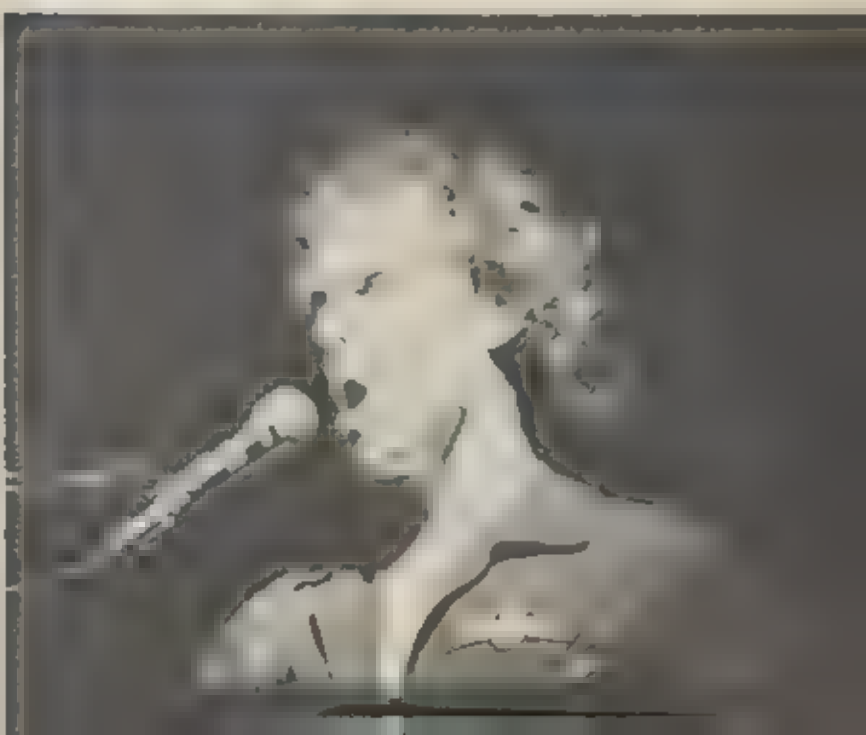

Somewhere over the rainbow
N.T. lies There's a class that I know of Brainwashing in disguise
CHORUS:
Someday I'll wish upon a star and wake up where the books are far behind me Where padded walls are everywhere and everyone will stop and stare That's where you'll find me

Somewhere over the rainbow
Teachers sigh
They just go on with teaching Boring us till we die
CHORUS:
Somewhere over the rainbow
Bluebirds die
They breathe carbon monoxide
Why then oh why can't I?

MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT

The year of 1979-1980 has been one of accomplishment. I have had the opportunity to lead North Toronto towards positive and creative goals. Among our accomplishments was a fund-raising drive for the Red Cross Society which enabled us to make our largest charitable donation in recent years, $1,100.00. With the help of our able and energetic members, the Student Council arranged performances, dances, an automobile rally, and numerous other social activities.

Extensive revisions to the Constitution of the Council allowed us to take a firm stand regarding Board of Education policies on students' rights and responsibilities, in the knowledge that students' views were well represented. We established regular communications with North Toronto area School Trustees, ensuring that the opinions held at North Toronto are known at the Board of Education. My colleagues and I have also had the honour of representing North Toronto at the Association of Student Councils, at the Area Six Education Council, at the Home and School Association and at the Empire Club.

The Council has taken a primary role in fostering a spirit of mutual confidence between the staff and students, and between the Council and the administration. We have endeavoured to make a contribution to the enjoyment and productiveness of this year of academic education at North Toronto. It has been an honour to serve you as president. Good luck to you all.

SONNET

I know not why the autumn leaves do fall
 From God's green warmth to Sorrow's splendid hue,
 But like the Pine whose demeanor is strange,
 I stand steadfast in Summer's sweet subdue.
 But as the seasons shift, my spirit dies,
 Transcending towards the depths from which it's grown;
 A raging wrath reflected in my eyes,
 I leave a Self whom I had barely known.
 Oh cunning Fall! why do you mock me so?
 To pluck from me an amity dear held;
 Long shrouded by your fiery colour-show,
 You're but a dark vexation long unquelled.
 To see lost joy, my sight is growing blind;
 If Winter comes can Spring be far behind?*

Mark Christopher Collins

*(Last line taken from Percy Bysshe Shelly's ODE TO THE WEST WIND)

Autumn

LOOK AT THE SKY

look at the sky tonight dark clouds at the horizon of our defeat
 you tell me you are tired of empty skies
 I say it is our answer and the dark carves out the sunset. you say you are anxious for the future, well I tell you solemnly the smokey blue against velvet merely sings of our desire. ominous, you say threatening against the twilight dance of leaves as we look upward into the august night yet you are afraid to hold me, you dare not stop to pass, beloved, you are darker than any sky tonight.

Helen Ferrigan 12J

poem for a lost generation stand desolate in a street's corner searching, looking breathlessly peoples - rush by masses of tired eyed souls, their un-thoughts embracing their faces indelibly
 It begins to rain and emptiness screams at you.
 Take your place along the subway wall people rush madly - going no place at all fate turns round itself - in a death's circle human freedom - will in front of a firesquad fall.
 Death walks at left - closer than shadow stalking us all.

C.J.

THE LION'S EYE

You have a particular gait; slow, walking from the Subway when your mind's on higher matters, quickening when the cold makes you wonder if it's really only October. You fly up the front steps like some creature less substantial than your tall muscular self, built, (you always say), like a deformed monster, built, as you know, like a giant hulk of dully shining steel, some mechanical lion or a predatory battleship.

You know you're too big for the front hall. The tinyness, the paper-thin delicacy of the curtains, the chiming of the chandelier make something of a Calaban of you, and you wonder why you didn't have it remodelled after Cynthia, or Mathilda (or whichever was the last one) moved out; remade in your own image, giant, resounding, an airforce hangar for your lair. You stoop to go into the kitchen, crashing amid tiny pots and pans for the coffee pot, banging it on the fragile element. Only coffee (magical coffee) will smooth your rough nerves. Coffee (black), a polished mirror in which your face reflects in lines of wavering beauty.

What a crazy afternoon it was! Damn coffee, burns your tongue and how you hate burns! Sometimes it seems everything you touch burns you. On the way home it rained on you; you sat in the Subway stinking like a wet hound, your hair glued to your forehead. A crazy old man looked at you with implacable grey-green eyes. You wanted a cigarette. Left them at home, of course. Your back was aching and you wondered if there was any valium left in the bathroom cabinet, or even better, was there any coffee in the pantry? The Subway spat you out, you dashed up the stairs, bursting through the ranks of shoppers with tiny babies in little carriages, out into the sun. At least it had stopped raining. Your damp hands sought your damp pockets. Had to have a cigarette. You saw a girl in the distance with uncombed hair, it might have been me, or any stranger.

Cigarettes. Coffee. It's good to be home! No valium though, and how will you sleep tonight? Your bed isn't long enough, and you never could sleep alone.

Where are the girls, the endless procession you thought would never bore you, until your hunting spirit forced you on your quest for more? You remember though, (was it Mathilda or Julie?) in the love-grip one August night, bending backwards over the rack you your eyes and found yourself in another person's mind, and how strange it was! You could hardly see, the light was all behind you, but as you swerved to see the source of fire your time expired, and you were reminded you weren't quite a god yet. And there you lay in strange, brittle arms, Apollo and Diana, stinking in August sweat, spawning fish, quiet and spent. The candle blown out.

You look now at your hands in fists on the table, your fists red and warm and deadly, lying deceptively still, like maces, between the ashtray and the coffee cup. That godawful dream you had last night about the fishbowl, empty, all dried up, and when you tried to pick up the fish it had dried to the side of the bowl, still alive and stuck down. And you wondered what that said about you, you big floundering fish in your empty bowl, gasping, grasping all you can reach because who knows it might water. The chasm widens, expands in the steam from your coffee, curls around your face in misting, blue cigarette smoke, and it occurs to you (maybe for the first time) that you opened your eyes in your own mind and you were a stranger too, plastered down, glued inextricably, like I am, to the edge of your page.

ashes dance and plummet wings wrapped around body as a doomed and falling pigeon
The moth, aimless and flighty, buzzes in and out of his despair ignores what he can't see searches not for what he doesn't understand and expects to be given what he cannot hope to receive "show me, Lead me, Love me", he cries he flutters in the eyes of physical satisfaction

CIRCUS 1907

The bundles of clothes lie as damp borders fencing off the ground where they sleep
The women gather them up early the next morning, load them on the steaming oiled train, their faces cold spots of frost, their skirts brushing past me and rubbing tears, with their roughness, from my eyes I have crouched behind these barrels for days, fed only on sugar-water rags which they push into my fingers.
impatient at my whining
At the next town, the red box will be unloaded once more, I will grip the bars and be buried by the fresh hay shoved through As they lift me through the air
I see the poke-eyed, mushroom faces of children, leering or crumpling in fear, the grey sweat of the ringmaster,
the polished muscled straining over me
The town dwindles to wooden blocks and with delight, I loop my body in the shape of a star, a sweetheart.

H.M.S. PINAFORE

High school drama emerges from the dark ages

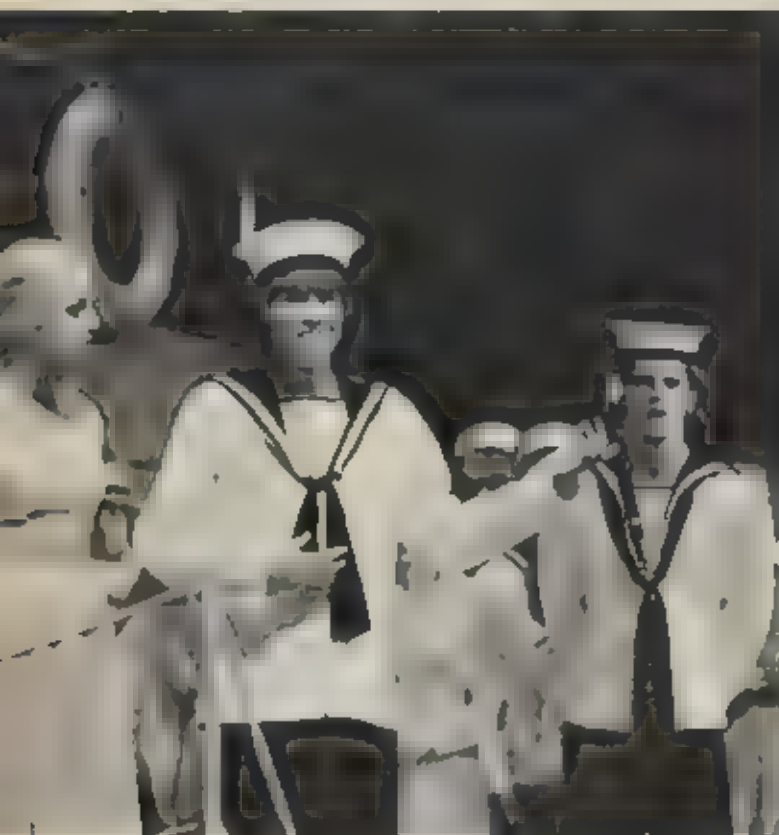

N.T.'s first term production was a splash hit. A cast of over a hundred swayed to the classic tunes of Gilbert and Sullivan's "H.M.S. Pinafore." The ship set sail in late November, bringing together a crew of singers, actors, musicians and dancers. Mr. Robert, the director, and Jill Knox, the assistant director, hoisted the sails of the play that sold out three nights in a row.

The large ship, constructed on N.T.'s own stage was plugged in during the second act and lit up the stage, causing "ooohs" and "Ahhhs" to emerge from the attentive audience.

The two "greats", John Burry and Nick Colicos gave us the definition of what a ham is really all about. Other leads such as Steve Fleck, Steve LeWarne, Karen Patterson, Doug Gowans, and many other fav's showed us a wild and crazy time on an all-too-swiftly ended voyage on the "Pinafore".

ANGEL

The second term play, "Angel", was written by one of our own students, Katerie Lanthier. It was set in World War II and was based on the conflicts and experiences of two adolescent sisters. "Angel" depicted one of the most important stages of life through the use of poetry, imagery, verse, and was accented by a colourful dance number at the end of the play. Megan Williams and Barb Cook played the leads and gave us characters as great and as memorable as Anne of Green Gables and other such celebrities.

The troupe of sixteen performers travelled to Shelbourne and to other neighbouring schools until they finally arrived back at N.T. for the final performance. All went well as Mr. Robert, the Director, and Karen Patterson, the Assistant Director, helped to pull the cast together during long rehearsals and over-packed performances.

Sue Dalkin, John Crombie, Chris Aide, Anya Aide, Lisa Jacobs, Diana Wishart, Mike Perkins, Michelle Clemo, Ryan Kho, Yves Abel, Debbie Henderson.

This year's Music Council has indeed been a Mighty one. We hope we have offered as much to its music teachers and students as the music department has offered us. No organization can survive without the Co-operation and enthusiasm of its members.

It was our goal to spark that enthusiasm and share it with the students, the pride that goes along with being a part of North Toronto's Music Programme.

DIG THE SHADES
CUTSIE RUSSELL!

The 1979 Senior Norsemen enjoyed a great season as they struggled to overcome good teams and bad press and climb to a first place finish in the T.S.S.A.A. The team was very close on and off the field which accounted for the tremendous disappointment when they lost in the Finals to a team they had beaten earlier in the year. But when all was said and done everyone involved with the team felt very satisfied with the experience they had gained by working together week after week. The rookies now look optimistically towards another successful season next year. Sincere thanks to all the coaches. Another job well done.

This year the Junior Norsemen achieved nothing but victory as they earned a 7 - 2 record season. This super season ended with the juniors accepting the finalist position. A position the North Toronto Junior Norsemen hasn't earned for 29 years; showing our great team achievement. This achievement is a product of three great fighting forces, our offense, defense, and our strong coaching force of Russell, Passmore, Batt and McKay. Thanks go to our school team supporters. And a special thanks to our statisticians, Lisa Baltz and Margo McMinn.

A NOTE FROM THE EDITOR

It is now at this point that I get sentimental, to pay homage to those five year veterans whom I love, respect and admire. Good luck in your futures.

Thanks to those few who slaved for hours with this book. It is to these people you owe your appreciation: Jennifer Fleming, Assistant Editor, who knew how to listen, work and sweat this book out, Andrew Sutton, Photo Manager, who spent many an hour running, clicking, complaining and developing these fine pictures, Susan Glynn, Activities Editor, who did her work twice because she is such a good worker, and because she loves it so much, Louisa Michelson, Photo and Layouts, who bugged, hassled and nagged everyone but was a big help, spending many extra hours in room 210, Susan Cunningham, Music Assistant and Miscellaneous Editor, who spent countless hours laughing her work away. Always a joy to be with ... all my love, the Grad Editors were a Godsend, because they knew what they were doing.

Also thanks to the rest of you guys who showed up occasionally, to Toby's burgers and milk. I'll always remember the neon ray glasses, the first dance partners, and the long distance phone calls. Special extra thank you's to the camera club who came through in the clinch - twice.

My dear, sweetest, Earl,

This is a very strange telling writing in your yearbook
But I must! Overall I would say that this has been an amzing year, Now I'm trying to think of something else to say, but N.H.V. - very rather why not "let things be" so instead of writing a long letter I will just record all the stuff that you and I would just rather not forget about but not talk about it, because basically it's just stupid (it's raining) O.K. fine, amazing, good, final.

So anytime in the summer you get bored with hanging out with the Italian summer-school friends - give me a call and we'll play some tennis or something - I MEAN IT! REALLY

O.K. well I guess I'll just sign off now, because I'm tired of writing

See you later, Mark

P.S. - Can I have your yearbook
I lost mine (ha, ha, ha, ha)

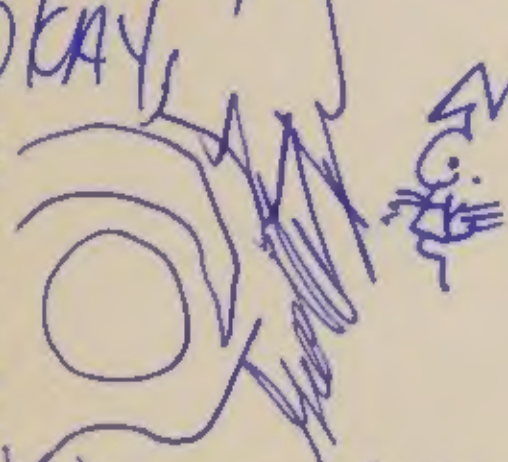

9) To mark's dearest, sweetest, Barb.

I hope you get a great tan and later on will get stupid and go play sunglasses in the rain

OKAY

Have a good day
SLVMMWSE

Barb.

I have become really good friends with you this year (naha) Art classes are always going to be in my mind.

Even times we can't remember.
I've seen you in a good state of mind and a bad state of mind but either way you're amazing. We have to get together this summer and take a lenny overdose. Barb! you're special, what would I do with out you and your fake I.D. (what's your friend's name?) (Mark and Mr. Hammond and James)
We all belong together.

One big happy family.
You aren't just a friend, you part of my life and my family.

OK. Mommy!

Kisses & hugs love

Dear Barb
 This year has been great and it has been great knowing you. Too bad I had no making classes with you. Drink I will meet you. Drink lots and have one hell of a hangover of a summer love

Barb
 So, we've been here for two years. We've had our good times and our bad. Overall, I had a good year. I probably will see you next year.
 Enjoy yourself.
